

Pensions for Purpose with the PLSA Afternoon Tea Discussion A five-step climate action plan for pension funds Tuesday 11th May 2021 at 2.30 p.m.

Event Description:

Pensions for Purpose is delighted to provide this roundtable session with the PLSA.

Karen Shackleton, founder of Pensions for Purpose will present her five-step climate action plan for pension funds looking to move to a sustainable investment approach. Pensions for Purpose has worked with a number of pension funds on their climate action strategy and Karen will discuss some of the challenges and barriers, and ways in which these may be overcome.

Karen will be joined by Richard Butcher, Chair of the PLSA. The PLSA have published a research paper "A changing climate - How pension funds can invest for the future". Richard will present some of the key recommendations from this report.

It will be followed by a moderated roundtable discussion which we expect to be lively and informative.

Outcome:

Participants will benefit from sharing experiences and should leave with a clear plan as to how their own pension fund's investments could shift towards net zero alignment by 2050.

Logistics:

It is a Zoom session for one hour and we encourage participants to share their video to give the feel of a roundtable discussion. Delegates will be sent a calendar hold after registering and dial-in details 24 hours prior to the event.

Registration:

To register for your place, please email Alex Noble at alex.noble@pensionsforpurpose.com. Please kindly note there is a limit of 20 participants for this discussion. This event is open to pension funds and independent trustees/advisers.
